THE BRITISH HEART JOURNAL

is a major international journal which concentrates on providing up to date clinical information. Found worldwide in leading libraries, and read by physicians and surgeons with more general interests, as well as by cardiologists, features include concise, readable editorials, written by international experts, which tie in with original research papers published in areas vital to the development of cardiology.

FUTURE FEATURES INCLUDE:

- In August the focus is on new technology
- battery powered angioplasty. Professor Serruys and his group from the Thorax Centre, Rotterdam compare the new technique with an established one (balloon angioplasty). In the same issue a team at St. George's Hospital describe their early experience with low speed rotational angioplasty. The whole topic is put in context in an accompanying editorial by Ulirich Sigwart, a pioneer in interventional cardiology.
- An editorial in the june issue asks "Should we get up in the morning?"prompted by the growing awareness of the circadian variation in cardiac events. The was fuelled by an original at published in the April Issue, "Circadian Variation in the Frequency of Onset of Chest Pain in Acute Myocardial Infarction.
- The pathophysiology of the processes underlying the development (atheroscierosis) and timing (ti of cardiac events was reviewed in the June issue by M.J. Davies and Drs Krikler and Katz (Atherosclerosiss inhibition or regression as therapeutic possibilities.)

The Journal also publishes original articles and reviews.
